The pageantry of the Pan Delta Race Festival continued today under sunny and warm conditions, with over 15,000 fan attendance, live television and PS Racing models bringing attention to the race grids.

Circuit Hero One

In Circuit Hero One, PS Racing drivers Robert Buchheit in his Porsche GT3 and Will Dew in his Lotus Elise both took to the podium, with Buchheit making a rocket-launching start in his 415hp GT3 to rocket to P2 overall by the first corner, throughout the race continuing to extending the gap to the 3rd place driver, finishing 2nd on the podium.

Will Dew started the first lap with a fantastic battle alongside fellow Brit Lee Field, completing an aggressive pass on Field's Ariel Atom in T7, but with Field retaking the position. However, Dew took a solid 3rd in Class on the podium.

Asia Formula Renault

PS Racing's Guillaume Cunningham did his best race ever today, starting 1st in the Master's Class after dominating Pole Position. Cunningham started the race 9th overall, and battled his way through the field to finish 5th overall while dominating Masters yet again for another glorious win.

Neric Wei got off to a good start but went into the grass in the high speed Turn 14 on the first lap and dropped far behind, making up several positions before the end of the ten lap sprint race.

Sebastien Mailloux got off to a fantastic start but spun in T9 after several laps and was unable to restart.

Meanwhile, Maxx Ebenal, who had qualified 3rd, only 0.2 seconds off pole position, got off to a typically excellent start and moved up into P2 immediately. However, on the last lap, after having dropped to 3rd during the race, while battling with 2008 AFR Champion Jim Kato, Ebenal spun, despite setting one of the fastest laps of the race.

Tomorrow the Pan Delta Race Festival Action will continue with Round 2 of both Asia Formula Renault and Circuit Hero One. Stay tuned to <http://www.psracing.com> for updates.
